

Purpose: Writing intensive (WI) courses are commonly needed by students after leaving Cuyahoga to meet transfer requirements for employment preparation. The main benefit of instituting a writing intensive course is to improve student writing across the curriculum and to prepare students for future writing.

(Please attach written responses where further explanation is needed)

3. A WI designated course requires students complete 20 pages of varied writing tasks, and Writing in the Discipline (WID) assignments need to comprise 1/2 of the work assigned or more.

Possible examples of these more formal "WID" writings could include essays, research papers, document based questions (DBQ's), poster/display boards, case studies, laboratory reports, creative manuscripts, proposals, annotated bibliographies, or a number of other kinds of writing ne
